MASAKO IWAMOTO

Masako Iwamoto is a Japanese artist who lives and works in London with a studio in North Kensington. She holds a BA in fine art painting from City and Guilds in London from which she graduated in 1999. Iwamoto's abstract works have been shown in London exhibitions with previous selections for the Discerning Eye and the Royal Academy Summer Exhibition.

Artist statement:

A long time has passed since my graduation from City & Guilds of London Art School in June 1999.

My main interest in painting is colour, with which I would like to express my feelings and thoughts. I have tried various things to realise what I am looking for. I started with depicting nature and everyday objects and gradually found the abstracted forms and shapes.

What I wish to achieve in my art is the paintings with a sense of joy and poetic feelings along with a harmony of colours.

Art Education:

1996-1999: BA in Fine Art Painting at City & Guilds of London Art School, London SE11

1994-1995: Art Foundation Course at Morley College, London SE1
